

OBER DORSEY AT ST. PATRICK'S RECTORY TODAY

The wedding of Miss Agnes R. Dorsey daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dorsey of 95 Harmony street and Eugene Ober, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ober of Holmes street, Strafford, took place this morning at 10 o'clock in St. Patrick's rectory. Rev. John C. Lynch performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white baronet satin and a white mohair hat. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Rose Geller of New York city was the attendant and wore a dainty frock of tea rose organdy with a hat to match. Her huge bouquet was of tea roses. Harrison Chase attended Mr. Ober.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Waters catered for the wedding luncheon which was served at noon. This evening the couple will leave for a honeymoon which will consist of a motor trip over the Mohawk trail. Mrs. Ober will be charmingly attired in a sport dress of old rose and white jersey with a sport hat of white flannel. They will return about July 30th and will reside at 95 Harmony street until their new home is completed.

Miss Dorsey is exceedingly well known in this city and has had a number of showers given in her honor. For some time she has been a teacher in Sheridan school. Mr. Ober is connected with the Minor, Read and Tullock company.

Chicken Farm Developed At Local Hospital

To the average individual who takes them for breakfast as a matter of course, there are only two kinds of eggs—the fresh and "store" variety. One kind comes from the other higher, but in all other respects eggs are eggs to the general public.

In a big hospital, however, where eggs form an important part of the daily menu, the difference between the two varieties is clearly recognized. Egg nog constitutes the main diet of many a patient who is dangerously ill, and it is of the utmost importance that the eggs used in making this important part of the diet be of the highest quality. Fresh eggs in a hospital mean eggs that are eaten on the same day they are laid. In a fresh egg is contained more nourishment than in one which is a couple of days old, and physicians have long recognized this fact and have prescribed fresh eggs for their patients.

At the Bridgeport hospital, fresh eggs are in a continual demand, and are consumed at the rate of several crates a day. At the present time, the local institution is buying its eggs from outside dealers, but this practice is to be discontinued.

A regular chicken farm is being developed at the hospital, under the supervision of Peter Richards, who has from "dove in Maine" by the first of February the hospital expects to get most of its eggs from its own hens.

Four hundred baby chicks, ranging in age from one day to seven weeks, are now being raised in the extensive pens at the rear of the hospital. Two or three times a week, this flock is added to by the acquisition of day-old chicks in lots of 100 each. These are purchased from various chicken fanciers throughout the state, and after being received at the hospital are placed with a hen who mothers them as if they were her own. All of the babies are incubator chicks and have to be housed in a brooder for a few days after their arrival.

By February 1, the present flock will be increased to 1,000 and it is believed that the hospital will get 500 eggs a day from the fowls. Experiments along these lines have been carried on at the Bridgeport hospital for the past year, and are meeting with excellent results.

Peter Richards, who knows all there is to be known about chickens, says that the White Leghorns and the Wyandottes are the best layers. In view of this fact, these breeds will be raised almost exclusively. Richards is a man who knows his business, and under his direction, the flock is bound to flourish.

In the near future, the present pens will be moved to a new location on the rear of the hospital property, where a plot of land containing more than two acres will be devoted to chicken raising.

AMERICANS ARE NOW DIRECTING SCHOOLS OF PERU

Lima, Peru, July 11.—Virtually the entire educational system of Peru is now under the direction of American professors who were called here recently to complete an educational reform movement begun ten years ago. The foreign educational experts are to develop the system from the primary grades to the university, in accordance with the special needs of each section of the country.

Dr. Harry Erwin Bard, formerly secretary of the Pan American Society of the United States and formerly connected with the Philippine educational mission, was chosen by President Leguia to direct the reorganization. Dr. Bard has been appointed general director of education and under him are more than 20 American professors.

The country has been divided into three regions. The regional directors are John K. Breedin, of South Carolina; William W. Andrews, of Massachusetts; and Glenn L. Caulkins, of Washington. F. B. Spaulding, of Vermont, is director of libraries; L. M. Wilson, of Illinois, is director of examinations and studies; and Dr. Crone, formerly director of the Philippines school system, is director of school house construction.

A new university has been created. Its branches are engineering, agriculture, pedagogical sciences, industrial arts and commerce. The first three branches are respectively under the direction of H. G. Lull, of Kansas; E. C. Parsons, and Dr. William E. Dunn, formerly of the University of Texas.

Fourteen other American professors have been distributed among the secondary colleges.

CANUCKS TO BUILD SCHOOL.
Woonsocket, R. I., July 11.—French Canadians of this city have launched a campaign for the purpose of raising $500,000 for the erection of a textile and manual training school here. People of their race all over the East have been urged to subscribe. A Woonsocket man has already contributed $50,000.

MISS WYOMING HONORED BY WEST

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 11.—With the announcement that the famous "Miss Wyoming" has been selected as honorary chairman of the committee of judges to select the world's champion all-around woman rider in the McAlpin Trophy contest at Cheyenne Frontier days during the last week in July, which she will be the first woman thus honored in the history of Western cowboy sports, an interesting little "inside story" of unselfish service on behalf of the West and its reward is revealed.

Two years ago a newspaper man was sent out from New York, bringing the design of the now famous 1919 "Miss Wyoming" poster, complete but for the figure of "Miss Wyoming" herself drawing aside the curtain which reveals the bucking broncho of the noted roundup.

It had been specified that none but a real Western girl should pose for the "Miss Wyoming" figure, and the correspondent arrived, a stranger from the East, to select the model.

A prominent Cheyenne society maid was invited to pose and refused coldly. Another was asked, and again she refused. The head of the other members of the local "460." Time grew short, a dozen had been asked, and no model.

Then Miss Helen Bonham was suggested for the part, and in her the designer found a real cowgirl, almost the perfect type for the figure. "It will be hard work," she said, "and others have refused to help," but she only laughed.

"If it will help Frontier days and the West I will be glad to do it," Miss Bonham replied, and for a week the maid went through the grueling work of posing for dozens of pictures until the right one was made.

The poster was published everywhere, and Miss Bonham as "Miss Wyoming" was started on the road to fame.

Then the trip to the East as the State's messenger in selecting the Frontier days invitations to the country's notables was suggested. Now, with the prospect of meeting the President, the Mayors, the Governors and being entertained as a celebrity by the greatest cities of the East, the maids who had borne spurned the idea of posing and who had snubbed the Eastern correspondent suggested it, all clamored to be chosen.

But Miss Bonham, as "Miss Wyoming," was by then not only prominent, she was famous, and she made who, Cinderella-like, she had risen from obscurity through her desire to help the West, went, as all newspaper readers know.

Entertained at the White House by President Harding, by New York millionaires, Mayors, Governors, the country's greatest society folk and women clubs, riding with the great Cinderella charmed all by her graciousness and personality. In the meanwhile the girls who had "cold shouldered" the Eastern correspondent snatched their teeth in dismay.

And now, with every cowgirl in the west in the contest to win the world's championship riding title at the great Frontier days sports, with the gold, silver and diamond McAlpin Trophy and the attendant trip to New York to members of Congress as prize "Miss Wyoming" is again honored, and on her badge of judgeship will be the inscription:

"For conspicuous service on behalf of the West."

Paris, July 11.—The distinction of being one of the first women editors of a sporting newspaper in France has fallen to Mademoiselle Berthe Bouvet, who has been appointed editor in chief of Le Sport de l'Aisne, a new sporting weekly published at Soissons. This publication is the official organ of all the sporting clubs of the Department of the Aisne.

Mademoiselle Bouvet is an enthusiastic sportswoman, only 24 years old, and one of the original founders of "Academia," the first sporting club for women, organized in Paris in 1915. She typified the new type of Frenchwoman—a woman who appreciates the value of physical exercise for women as well as men.

In a leading editorial in Le Sport de l'Aisne, Mlle Bouvet says: "In England and in America, especially, the women have found a path to good health which is far more effective than all the in-door medical science of the past. It is time our Frenchwomen followed the example. In all France there are 52 sporting clubs for women with a total membership of 40,000. Sports to play a part in the life of some French women, but in the life of far too few."

If we wish to have a vigorous, healthy race, it is necessary that our women as well as our men indulge in outdoor sports."

Norwalk, July 11.—At the annual meeting of the Yale Alumni of Fairfield county here, Minette Osborn of New Haven who was the principal speaker, outlined the recent administration of affairs at Yale and stated that the greatest confidence existed among Yale men in the coming administration of President Angell.

Samuel C. Shaw was elected president of the organization and addresses were made by Judge J. W. Banks, Prof. D. S. Sanford of Redding and several others.

Miss Rose Geller of New York city is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dorsey of 95 Harmony street. Miss Geller was bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Agnes Dorsey and Eugene Ober which took place this morning.

FIGHTING GREEKS

Angora, Turkey, July 11.—A Turkish Joan of Arc, Aishe Hanum, has started a woman's fighting brigade against the Greeks. Her organization called the Kain brigade, has already taken part in active fighting and she is constantly enrolling new recruits. This is the first time in Turkish history that a woman has been so militantly active. She has been dubbed by the people of Anatolia, "The Conqueror." Her personality is in direct contrast to the beautiful Halide Edib Hanum, the writer and graduate of the American Constantinople College, who has been so active in politics, to escape imprisonment by the Allies.

Aishe Hanum is a stern, dark woman of the soil, aged 52, who sees visions and believes she is inspired by the Prophet. She wears a veil but has cast aside skirts. She carries a rifle and when not at the front goes through the villages accompanied by her 15-year-old son, urging the peasants to contribute food and money and their able-bodied women to cast off the enemy stranger from the homeland.

As Nationalist soldiers, the uniform of the Kadiri Brigade corresponds to that of its leaders.

Indirectly, Aishe Hanum is doing as much as Halide Hanum to emancipate the Turkish women. When she began her work, the Turkish men, who dislike to have women interfere in politics, tried to force her to return to her farm. But, by the courage born of her visions, Aishe Hanum has continued until she is recognized as an aid to the Nationalist cause.

WOMEN OPPOSE ANTI-SMOKE BILL

Washington, July 11.—"I am glad you do not smoke or chew. It would be heaven to kiss a man with a clean mouth!" writes Bernice Kern, of Des Moines, Iowa, to Congressman Paul B. Johnson, of Mississippi, who is carrying on a hard fight in the House to prohibit women from smoking in public places in Washington.

This is a sample of the flood of letters which have reached Johnson since he offered his anti-smoke measure, but do not imagine that Miss Kern, of Des Moines, is one of the backers of the bill.

"This has been a man's world long enough," she continued, "and we women are ready and willing to regulate our own affairs as soon as you leave it to us and spend your time raising the standard of the man element."

The women of Washington apparently have taken little interest in the Johnson bill, only two of the many letters he has received on the subject having come from the Capital.

You don't know what you are missing if you dismiss without experience the charm of Lady Nicotine," H. French, of No. 14 Wall street, New York, writes to the Congressman.

Mr. William Greenville, of New York City, says:

"Bully for you, Mr. Representative of Mississippi. I am not a prude. I am not a prohibitionist. I like a man to have his glass of beer, wine, or even whiskey, as the case may be. I draw the line at women smoking either publicly or otherwise. I have two granddaughters who smoke. I am ashamed to say, 'They will never see a penny of my money just for that!'"

Unmoved by the hundreds of condemnations and congratulations which have come to him as the result of his attempt to "regulate" the women of Washington, Johnson is busy lining up his Anti-Smoke bill and hopes that it will become a law.

NUN IS CALLED IN JURY

London, July 11.—A nun living in a community in London has been summoned to serve as a woman juror in the High Courts.

The incident is giving rise to great agitation in Catholic and non-Catholic circles, as it will mean her breaking her vows, and a bill is now being drafted by the Catholic Union in England to give immunity to nuns.
